

Tenant Satisfaction Measures (TSMs)

2025

On 1st April 2023, the Regulator of Social Housing introduced 22 Tenant Satisfaction Measures (“TSMs”) to assess how well social housing landlords in England are providing good quality homes and services.

The 22 TSMs consist of 10 that are measured directly by BCOP and 12 that are measured by a resident survey.

All Registered Housing Providers are formally required to publish the results so that residents can see how their landlord is performing against other landlords.

76 residents responded to the confidential survey run by BCOP between June and November 2025 - approximately 58% of our residents. This compares to 50% who responded to our survey in 2023.

What happens next?

BCOP uses feedback from the Tenant Satisfaction Measures as valuable learning, helping us to maintain the trust of our residents and further improve our services.

Since our 2023 survey we have:

Updated our complaints policy so that all expressions of dissatisfaction are treated as complaints, and ensured staff are confident following the complaint process

Installed new software to better support our management information, e.g. tracking repair times

Improved our communication by:

- begun a program of fitting new noticeboards
- holding regular resident meetings in our supported housing
- introduced 'you said, we did' posters after talking to you
- started a quarterly newsletter to include more housing information
- making the newsletter available in different formats
- introduced a more flexible structure for Tenant Support Officers in our supported housing schemes
- hired a Housing & Compliance Officer to make our service more responsive and efficient

Following this 2025 survey we will be introducing ways of asking for your views in a shorter timescale, for example after you move into a new home or after a repair has been carried out.

As well as notices and contact with your tenant support officer, we will advertise more events such as residents meetings and activities on our website.

We'll be contacting those respondents who gave us permission, to ask for more detailed information following their survey.
